I recently read a passage by Angela Ashwin in from Pain into Prayer that is very timely, though I paraphrase it slightly;

Weeping expresses our common humanity, something that transcends our differences. Somehow when we weep we express the fact that we can't control our world, or indeed our human existence, or life or death. We acknowledge our dependence and our powerlessness, but beyond that, our love...

'See how he must have loved him', they said of Jesus as they watched him weeping for his dead friend Lazarus. Weeping and love belong together. For the world's ultimate sanity men as well as women will have to learn how to weep...

And in some mysterious way, tears can begin to lead to resurrection, they are agents of transformation. Only those that sow in tears are told that they shall reap in joy. We are promised that there will come a time when God will wipe away all tears from our eyes. But that is a promise God cannot keep unless we first learn how to weep.

It is good to follow a practice for Lent but far more valuable if it has a lasting effect on us; this Lent we had continental breakfast and Celtic prayer every Monday morning. We found it so helpful, as a time of prayer, as a chance to chat and catch up over a light breakfast and as a good start to the week, that we've decided to carry on with it.

The format is 7.45am onwards for breakfast, then at 8.30am we have a period of prayer using a Celtic pattern and are finished by 9am for those who need to get along.

All are very welcome to join us on any Monday morning, but it is a 'moveable feast' so it would be best to contact Rev Michael if you'd like to come along and he can tell you which house it will be in.

Syleham

Overshadowing all in Syleham in the last couple of weeks has been the sudden and very sad death of our much loved churchwarden and well-known resident, John (J) Leader. J's gentle, self-deprecating humour, his legendary generosity and his graciousness endeared him to all he met and it feels as though the heart has been torn out of our village. St Margaret's provided a focus for grief with a service of prayers, candles and music beautifully led by Revd Michael just two days after his death; the church full to capacity despite the short notice and we expect even more at a Thanksgiving Service on Friday 3rd June, 12 noon. Syleham was well represented at the benefice Lent prayer breakfasts and J was a regular attendee at these. For many, our last memories of his home and garden at Monks Hall were the moving 'Stations of the Resurrection' conducted by Revd Michael on Easter morning.

An exploratory evening bible study group, focussing on passages from Mark's gospel and with the theme of Generous God, Generous People, is being held in Syleham: final week will be Tues 3 May. Messy Church is growing and all families are welcome: our session on 1 May will have a worldwide theme.

Syleham's summer lunch on 16 July will go ahead, not at Monks Hall but at a different venue. Contact for any of the above – churchwarden, Mary Lewis (669258) mary.lewis43@icloud.com

Latest scam – beware of a telephone call purporting to be from the Eye Health Centre and seeking many personal details. There has been a call received in Hoxne which was reported to the police.
